BARRETT TAKES RAP AT BOGUS CONVERTS

Evangelist Ridicules Tactics Employed by Some Revivalists Anxious to Make Showings.

Last night saw the first conversion at the meetings at the Methodist church, conducted by the evangelist Charles E. Barrett. The conversion was upon the entire congregation. Mr. Barrett spoke on "Not the Unholy Spirit," taking his text from John 14:17, "The Spirit which I will send to you will abide in you." The message was a most telling one. Mr. Barrett ridiculed the tactics of modern evangelists, and revealed that the terms of salvation given in his doctrine advanced to Nicodemus had never been recalled. He said in part: "You cannot backslide until you are dead. If you are truly born again, it is almost impossible to be a backslider. To be born again means something more than to sign a card, or have a hand, or with an eye, or join a church, or sit under the water. To be born again means to become a new creature, the passing from death into life, the renewing of the mind, and to become a partaker of the divine nature." "The only way to become a son of God is to be born again. You cannot evolve, or be hypnotized, or be educated into, or baptized into, a son of God." "All ceremonies, and notions, and feelings are of no value to you if you are not born again." Mr. Barrett's methods of dealing with seekers were new, and with universal commendation. He will speak tonight on "The Freedom of Probation," and Miss Threlkeld will sing.

MEMBERS INVITED TO HELP MAKE BANDAGES

Give League Ladies to Have Thimble Party at City Hall on Friday Afternoon.

On Friday afternoon at one-thirty the ladies of the Give League are invited to meet at the city hall, armed with thimbles, for an old-fashioned thimble party. Bandages for the Red Cross supplies now at the front in the city hall, and ladies having old linen will be happy to donate it. ## COMMISSION TO ENFORCE Slaughterhouse Ordinances

Members of the city commission on Friday called several inspectors to the city hall to discuss the enforcement of the slaughterhouse ordinances. The inspectors were shown the city hall, and even went as far as to call one of the men before the council to explain alleged violations. One case was called to the attention of the city officials that a private slaughterhouse in one of the butcher shops was being used for the slaughter of animals, causing a very unsanitary condition. Improvements were promised in this particular case.

BROWNS WON FROM THE LAFALETS LAST EVENING

ONCE it gets started every man on the job is soon using "Right-Cut", the Real Tobacco Chew. Each man has his friends—and so the circle widens. "Right-Cut" earns that best of all praise, the quiet word from friend to friend.

It's mellow, full-bodied tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough. The taste is fine and it lasts. Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the size of a cigarette. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short, so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary tobacco makes you spit too much. One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind. WEYMAN-BRUTON COMPANY 80 Union Square, New York. BUY FROM DEALER OR SEND 10¢ STAMPS TO US

OUR National Opportunity LESSON 5 OF AMERICA FROM THE WAR

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF IMPROVING BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

By George H. Benedict.

The opponents of President Wilson have found considerable amusement in his declaration that the condition of the business world was wonderfully revived when it learned that Uncle Sam had joined the war.

The country has turned conservative during the past two years. Generally to buy business has cooled remarkably. While there can be no change in law or government for two years more, big business brightens up.

Now, however, we are all ready to admit that business depression of business optimism are largely induced by our state of mind.

The "psychology of psychology," strangely enough, comes through the agencies in the recent election of the when given a vote of confidence. Development may well lead us to expect that the interstate commerce commission, now deliberating on the subject of allowing railroads to increase their freight rates, will decide in favor of the railroads.

The temper of the people is well understood, and it would be strange if the commission did not heed it.

The welfare of a great part of our industrial world is closely bound up with that of the railroads. The steel industry, for example, is hoping for big orders if the rate increase is allowed.

The chief concern of the railroads has to do with problems of finance. Under existing conditions, they find it exceedingly difficult to borrow money to meet bonds and other obligations falling due. The European war has made the situation much more difficult by cutting off a great store of capital that was formerly available to us.

It is not my purpose to debate the justice of the railroads' plan, or to meet the objection that a part of the financial trouble is due to stock watering under bad management of a former day.

My point is that the commissioners are likely to extend relief, and that another big psychological revival will follow. The steel industry and other lines will benefit.

Two commissioners are reported in favor of granting the roads' request. Two are said to be willing to allow a partial increase, and one is against any raise at all. Let us hope that the decision will soon be announced.

When you lose anything leave it to Gazette Want Ads, the biggest little finders of lost articles in Rock County.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

"THE WATERLOO OF THE CONSPIRATORS"

Crowded with thrilling incidents.—Hargreave's return.—the death of Braine, etc.

MAJESTIC AND LYRIC

Try your hand at writing a solution of the Mystery. Someone will win the $10,000.—maybe you. You have about six weeks to get your solution ready. The solution will be shown in pictures here shortly after the winner is chosen.

"Zudora," even greater than "The Million Dollar Mystery," starts next Thursday. Watch for further announcements.

The time for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Park association draws near and in this connection it might be said that the present board has been most successful and deserves the stamp of approval of citizens generally. A fair has been conducted, the grounds improved, new buildings constructed and the way paved for a permanent institution that will be an honor and credit to the community as a whole.

These are the days that the average sporting writer finds it hard work to even draw out some wild and crazy story of the possibilities of the coming baseball season and the fight between the two older leagues and the Federal. It is a strange mix-up at best.

With the rulers of all the nations engaged in war at the front with their forces it is to be expected that there will be something startling doing along the various battle lines within the next few days. Meanwhile, the old claims great victories and the Germans report the capture of a vast army of Russians, so there you are.

McGovern does not mean to be counted out as a nominee for the United States senate, elected by any democrat, if possible. Meanwhile the Milwaukee Germans who voted for Frank are indignant to think they helped elect a Frankishman to represent their interests in Washington.

So the progressives have decided to continue their organization and make a campaign two years from now with a presidential candidate in the field. By that time there will not be enough progressives left to hold a national convention.

Talk about bumper crops in the potato line when Washington boasts of tubers weighing two pounds each while right here in Janesville several have been weighed and found to touch the three pound mark, and many others way above the two-pound average.

The same reason for the majority of game in the state is over. However it is an open season yet for wolves and the quicker the packs that are to be found in Rock county are exterminated the better off for the future of the various flocks of sheep and cattle will be.

If the Rock County sugar company's plant was only running now, with the tobacco harvest coming in, it would mean lots of Christmas money for the Janesville merchants. By the way, the sugar plant can be operated next year if the growers are willing to cooperate with the owner.

These are the days that the penguin is seeking the topmost branches in the southern forests away from his colored brother who, at such a time, is content to eat sweet potatoes and penguin served as only the old colored mammy knows how. Corn pone on the side.

Chicago is taking hold of the shop early slogan and the same results which are to be found in the larger cities is also true of the smaller, and the Janesville Christmas purchasers would do well to bear it in mind.

This shop early slogan appears to be having its effect upon merchants and shoppers alike. It is a good policy and one which does away with the rush and extra worry of the holiday season.

Help to Absent-Minded. A watch that accurately indicates the exact time elapsed since the last time it was wound has recently been placed on the market. The face of the timekeeper is provided with a small dial near the top of the regular dial, which has a small hand that shows when the mainspring was last wound, and also records the progress of its unwinding, thus showing at a glance when the watch needs re-winding.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON VISITING.
A FRIEND of mine who was utterly tired out, after an unusually strenuous winter's work, was invited to spend her vacation with friends last summer.

She very gratefully, but firmly, declined the invitation and went to a small boarding house. Her friends were decidedly miffed. "The idea of her preferring that miserable little room to the big, pleasant room she would have had at our house," they lamented. "Perhaps she thinks she'll get better food there, but she won't, and she hasn't any money to spare either. We meant to do her a kindness, but apparently she is hard to please."

Can you understand why this very tired woman chose the "miserable little boarding house room" in preference to the big, sunny guest room?

I can. It was because in that little hall chamber she could find one thing which she knew would be lacking in the big, beautiful room—and that was freedom, absolute freedom to do what she wanted and when, or if she preferred to do nothing at all.

And to my mind that is one of the essentials of a vacation, especially if one is completely tired.

Do you like to visit, Reader Friend? I hope you do not for any reason about to confess a deep rooted aversion to extend visiting, and especially to the notion that it is to be considered in the light of a relaxation.

Visiting is just like being dressed up all the time. It is a joy to have fine clothes and a pleasure to dress up in them, but to me, at least, it is a terrible bore to stay dressed up any length of time.

Of course, in my objection to visiting I except near relatives and very intimate friends; like the familiar garments that do not irritate or make one's clothes conspicuous.

No matter how kindly intentioned your hosts, miscellaneous visiting demands a great deal of one. One must accommodate oneself to a new routine; one must rise, eat and go to bed at the hostess's pleasure. One must be ever ready to talk or be silent, go out or stay in, listen to music, meet new people, talk society's news, with one acquaintance or discuss ethics with another. And, last of all, one must like everything; one must be always appreciative and grateful.

A guest who does less than this is not a gracious guest, and who would want to visit and not do it well?

As a family we were always more visited against than visiting, and even as a child I relished this state of affairs, for I am selfish enough, if visiting is to be done, to prefer to be hostess rather than guest.

Now please do not think I am unsocial; on the contrary I love to gather my friends around me at the table or before the open fire. And I love to go to their homes, but I like to come back to mine. An hour or two on the veranda, or around the tea table, a congenial party at dinner, an evening before the open fire, these, to my mind, are the flower of social intercourse, these and not the strain and effort of extended visiting.

Household Hint.
A good storm door can be made by covering the screen doors with a thin oilcloth. Draw oilcloth smoothly over screen door frame and all and glue neatly on the inside. To make a window cut out the square size you want for a window and glue or stitch in place on the screen.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Avoid using grease at all upon your aluminum griddle. Cakes will not stick to it, while if it is greased the grease burns on it and blackens it. Do not use scouring powder, as this will easily scratch. Steel-wool is good for cleaning aluminum.

THE TABLE.
Yecomain (to take the place of meat)—Boil one pound wide noodles in salt water; strain when well done. Cut three medium onions, real fine, and fry in butter. Add salt, pepper, and a dash of sugar. Fry mushrooms and onions in plenty of butter until onion is a golden brown; mix noodles with same. Then cut two hard boiled eggs very fine and fry all together about five or ten minutes. Serve hot. This makes a very delicious dish.

Lard Sweetbreads.—Trim one pair sweetbreads, then lard them carefully, putting four lardoons in each sweetbread. Parboil them fifteen minutes in one quart boiling water, to which may be added one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon vinegar, piece of bay leaf and one clove. Blanch for five minutes in cold water and remove the skin that is on them. Put into baking pan one onion, one carrot, one stalk celery, one teaspoon salt, one clove, and fry all together about five minutes, basting every ten minutes. Serve with peas.

EVERY DAY TO EVERY DAY TALKS

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

We meet each other on the busy street, stop a moment to speak of our recent events, and the talk localizes. A case in our own home town is very much dissected, and as we part we each make up our head an air of finality: "This is a funny world; a queer, old place."

A young man, not yet thirty, the father of a little child, dwells in a town not ten hours' ride from here. He is not paying on a home and at the present time he is a hold-down man. He lost his last place on account of his misdeeds, and he could back the breweries and hold down a job at the same time, and a former job was taken from him for his failure to appear promptly after payday. He is a good earner, but very little of his earnings enter his home—unless a coo slips somewhere.

His family is comprised of boys and girls. When the twin daughters are faint or sound in the cold, gray dawn, he has to get up and drink, to forget his sorrow. So forlorn were the conditions of his home, that the attending physician on each trip took his wife that she might do something for the mother and children. At such of his calls, the "modest" father was sleeping off the after-effects of his drinking.

This little narration may come as a revelation to some, but the nature of hardships, self-denial and faith that the woman in this case endures, while it may put you out of patience one moment, touches you to the heart the next for her hope, her patience in unendurable conditions.

However, should you suggest to a young couple that it pays to be particular in choosing a life mate, you are branded as a "eugenic fool" or a wrecker of young life and happiness. To suggest that a young girl should not marry a man who is wobbly on the drink question, who is not a father, one is apt to go down under adverse circumstances, is to condemn your name for all time from the young lady's friendship tablet. To be so hard-hearted as to infer that a young man should stop long enough, on his road to matrimony, to entertain the thought that, in the years that loom before him, it should be his good fortune to have a little daughter, a little daughter with his pretty

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty. I have kept company with the same young man for over a year. Last week we had quarrel and I was told to blame. We have met several times since, but have not spoken. I hate to lose a good friend for so trifling a matter as caused our quarrel. What can I do to regain his friendship?

TROUBLED.
My dear girl, it is always best to acknowledge our mistake when we have done wrong. Good ways would be to write a note to the young man, explain your position, acknowledge his fault, and beg his pardon, or say that you are sorry for the misunderstanding. It is a shame to let trifles deprive us of friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Several weeks ago I met a young foreigner at a party and he has been beseeching me with attentions ever since. He says he has fallen in love with me at first sight and wants to marry me. I do not love him or know enough about him to know whether I could learn to love him or not. He seems a nice fellow. What would you advise me to do?

A. A. D.
If you are sure you do not want to marry him, refuse all invitations, refuse to see him. Give him an answer plainly. If you are undecided and would like time to consider the matter, tell him you will allow him to see you if he will never refer to the subject of love for never months. In the meantime you can learn something about him and be able to make your decision. After the three months are up give him a definite answer.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am to be married in church near Christmas. Would it be proper to have my sister sing "Oh, Promise Me" as the bride should someone else do it? BRIDE.

It is usually customary for the bride's sister to act as a bridesmaid, at it is a more important position in the ceremony. Could you not get someone else to sing or play the wedding march for you? One girl who is prominent in society had her mother act as matron of honor. If that were done, it would be appropriate to have the sister sing, and that would make an impressive ceremony. Who so fitted to conduct the bride to the altar as the mother? I think it would be a beautiful custom to introduce.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I love to read your answers to all questions and I wish to thank you very much for the problem you settled for me. I do not know how to express my every day, not only for myself, but for other people also. One night as I and my friend arrived home I explained to him why I could not invite him in. It was then after 11 o'clock. My mother is very nervous and I disturbed she cannot sleep so I thought I was doing right. Do you think he had any right to get angry and was I doing right?

(2) My dear father has been dead several years and as I am the only girl at home I feel that I should be with mother more. Now, if I don't go out with other girls they say I do not like to mix with them and that I am an old woman. My mother will let me go out whenever I want to. Do you think I am doing right?

(3) Dear girl, you showed only proper consideration for your mother and did the right thing not to invite your escort in. It is necessary to have a long distance to go. No gentleman would show displeasure over any such thing.

(4) I think you are very unselfish and devoted to your mother. No doubt you are a great comfort to her. Do not neglect your company, however, or you will become old in spirit. That would lessen your chance of happiness. Keep young friends and go out often enough to keep in touch with them.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA DEONARD

They were sitting in front of the cozy grate fire, by the bright library lamp. Mr. Barry was reading aloud, while his wife stitched diligently on a dress to which she was giving the finishing touch.

"What a fine dress!" he finished a chapter. "Mr. Barry closed the book on his finger and looked at his wife."

FASHION HAS FLED FROM RUE DE LA PAIX

Spot Cash Instead of Credit Has Put Decided Crimp Into Paris Fashions.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Paris, Dec. 3.—American women accustomed to come here annually to worship at the shrine of Dame Fashion would grieve at the change that has come to the Rue de la Paix. Fashion has fled.

The luxurious limousine and the busy taxi-cab have gone to war. In their places are cars drawn by horses too stiff or feeble to carry troops.

The gowns that used to scintillate behind plate glass windows, and the silk ruffles and dainty lingerie that tempted the glances of passersby, have disappeared behind iron shutters that were put up with the coming of the moratorium.

Shop keepers are not agreed that all of this caution is necessary. Many believe there would be business if there was credit. The moratorium means spot cash. Said one of them: "It is madame who buys and monsigner who pays. When credit disappears the life of the Rue de la Paix goes out."

Some of the artistic designers who in the past have clothed famous Paris and are well known in America are now making uniforms. One of the conspicuous apostles of recent eccentricities in women's wear (Furber) is superintending the work in a government uniform shop. One of the largest dress-making shops (Worth) is occupied by a very complete and comfortable auxiliary hospital. The aristocratic hotels are blank and dismal, and Napoleon looks chilly and lonesome at the top of the column on Place Vendôme.

The moratorium is death on gaily as well as the foe of credit. It has chased away the frolicsome midwinters, who used to dance out of the fashionable Rue de la Paix shops at noon, arm in arm, by twos, threes and fours, to trip away lightly

CHILD BORN WITH HARD COLD

Remarkable Statement of Girl's Mother. How She Suffered Until Six Years Old. How Finally Cured.

Pittsfield, Mass.—"My little girl now six years old was born with a hard cold and very delicate. Every winter she would suffer from croup and poor digestion. Dr. Currier recommended Vinol and within a week she had improved considerably, and her appetite increased so she wanted things to eat that had disgusted her before."

"On the first bottle she gained one and a half pounds, and now at the age of six Vinol has made her a solid, healthy, good-natured child, and while she was so cross and fretful I grew discouraged and was worn out taking care of her."—Mrs. George Wagner, Pittsfield, Mass.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, is a wonderful appetizer, and you can see delicate, ailing children improve day by day under its use. It enriches the blood, builds up the body, making pale, delicate children rosy and rosy.

We ask all parents of weak, sickly, delicate children in this vicinity to try Vinol, with the understanding that if it fails to benefit your little ones, we will return your money.—Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

NOTE:—You can get Vinol at the leading drug stores in every town where this paper circulates.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with 25 pints of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you a good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 60 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the nasal cavity or throat and at once conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight, cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and breaks it up, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with quaiaccol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "25¢ ounces of Pinex" and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of complete satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, comes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The CALL of the CUMBERLANDS

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK WITH ILLUSTRATIONS FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF SCENES IN THE PLAY

"It was not until much later that Samson realized how these two really great men had adopted him as their 'little brother' that he might have their shoulder-touch to march by. And it was without his realization, too, that they laid upon him the imprint of their own characters and philosophy."

"I have come, not to quarrel with you, but to try to dissuade you." The Hon. Mr. Wickliffe spoke savagely at his cigar and gave a despairing spread to his well-manicured hands. "You stand in danger of becoming the most cordially hated man in New York—hated by the most powerful combinations in New York."

Wilfred Horton leaned back in a swivel chair and put his feet up on his desk. For a while he seemed interested in his own silk socks.

"It's very kind of you to warn me," he said, quietly.

The Hon. Mr. Wickliffe rose in exasperation and paced the floor. The smoke from his black cigar went before him in vicious puffs. Finally he stopped and leaned glaring on the table.

"Your family has always been conservative. When you succeeded to the fortune you showed no symptoms of this mania. In God's name, what has changed you?"

"I hope I have grown up," explained the young man, with an untroubled smile. "One can't wear swaddling clothes forever, you know."

The attorney for an instant softened his manner as he looked into the straight-gazing, unafraid eyes of his client.

"I've known you from your babyhood. I advised your father before you were born. You have, by the chance of birth, come into the control of great wealth. The world of finance is of delicate balance. Squabbles in certain directorates may throw the Street into panic. Suddenly you emerge from decent quiet and run amuck in the china shop, bellowing and toasting your horns. You make war on those whose interests are your own. You seem bent on harikari. You have toys enough to amuse. Why couldn't you stay put?"

"They weren't the right things. They were, as you say, toys." The smile faded and Horton's chin set itself for a moment as he added:

"If you don't think I'm going to stay put—watch me."

"Why do you have to make war—to be chronically insurgent?"

"Because"—the young man, who had waked up, spoke slowly—"I am reading a certain writing on the wall. The time is not far off when, unless we regulate a number of matters from within we shall be regulated from without."

"Take for instance this newspaper war you've inaugurated on the police," grumbled the corporation lawyer. "It's less dangerous to the public than these financial crusades, but decidedly more so for yourself. You are regarded as a dangerous agitator, a marplot! I tell you, Wilfred, aside from all other considerations the thing is perilous to yourself. You are riding for a fall. Those men whom you are whipping out of public life will turn on you."

"So I hear. Here's a letter I got this morning—unsigned. That is, I thought it was here. Well, no matter. It warns me that I have less than three months to live unless I call off my dogs."

It is said that the new convert is ever the most extreme fanatic. Wilfred Horton had promised to put on his working clothes, and he had done it with reckless disregard for consequences. At first, he was simply obeying Adrienne's orders; but soon he found himself playing the game for the game's sake. Political overlord, assailed as unfaithful servants, showed their teeth. From some hidden, but unfailing, source terribly sure and direct evidence of guilt was being gathered. For Wilfred Horton, who was demanding a day of reckoning and spending great sums of money to get it, there was a prospect of things doing.

Adrienne Lescott was in Europe. Soon she would return and Horton meant to show that he had not buried his talent.

For eight months Samson's life had run in the steady ascent of gradual climbing, but in the four months from the first of August to the first of December, the pace of his existence suddenly quickened. He left off drawing from plaster casts and went into a life class.

In this period Samson had his first acquaintance with women, except those he had known from childhood—and his first acquaintance with the men who were not of his own art world.

Tony Collasso was an Italian illustrator who lodged and painted in studio-apartments in Washington Square, South. His companions were various, numbering among them a group of those pygmy celebrities of whom one has never heard until by chance he meets them, and of whom their intimates speak as of immortals.

To Collasso's studio Samson was called one night by telephone. He had sometimes gone there before to sit for an hour, chiefly as a listener, while the man from Sorrento bellowed late with his coterie, and denounced all forms of government over insipid Chianti.

But tonight he entered the door to find himself in the midst of a gay and boisterous party. The room was already thickly fogged with smoke, and a dozen men and women, singing snatches of current airs, were interesting themselves over a chafing dish.

The crowd was typical. A few very minor writers and artists, a model or two, and several women who had thinking parts in current Broadway productions.

At eleven o'clock the guests of honor arrived in a taxicab. They were Mr. William Farish and Miss Wilfred Starr. Having come, as they explained, direct from the theater where Miss Starr danced in the first row, they were in evening dress. Samson mentally acknowledged, though with instinctive distaste for the pair, that both were, in a way, handsome. Collasso drew him aside to whisper importantly.

"Make yourself agreeable to Farish. He is received in the most exclusive society, and is a connoisseur of art. If he takes a fancy to you, he will put you up at the best clubs. I think I shall sell him a landscape."

The girl was talking rapidly and loudly. She had at once taken the center of the room, and her laughter rang in free and egotistical peals above the other voices.

"Come, said the host, 'I shall present you.'"

The boy shook hands, gazing with his usual directness into the show-girl's large and deeply-penciled eyes. Farish, standing at one side with his hands in his pockets, looked on with an air of slightly bored detachment.

His dress, his mannerisms, his bearing, were all those of the man who has overstudied his part. They were too perfect, too obviously rehearsed through years of social climbing, but that was a defect Samson was not yet prepared to recognize.

Someone had naively complimented Miss Starr on the leopard-skin cloak she had just thrown from her shapely shoulders, and she turned promptly and vivaciously to the flatterer.

"It is nice, isn't it?" she prattled. "It may look a little upstage for a girl who hasn't got a line to read into the piece, but these days one must get the spotlight, or be a dead one. It reminds me of a little run-in I had with Graddy—he's our stage-director, you know." She paused, awaiting the invitation to proceed, and, having received it, went gayly forward. "I was ten minutes late, one day, for rehearsal, and Graddy came up with that sarcastic manner of his, and said: 'Miss Starr, I don't doubt you are a perfectly nice girl, and all that, but it rather gets my goat to figure out how, on a salary of fifteen dollars a week, you come to rehearsals in a million dollars' worth of clothes, riding in a limousine—and ten minutes late!'" She broke off with the eager little expression of awaiting applause, and, having been satisfied, she added: "I was afraid that wasn't going to get a laugh after all."

She glanced inquiringly at Samson, who had not smiled, and who stood looking puzzled.

"A penny for your thoughts, Mr. South, from down South," she challenged.

"I guess I'm sort of like Mr. Graddy," said the boy, slowly. "I was just wondering how you do it."

He spoke with perfect seriousness, and, after a moment, the girl broke into prolonged peal of laughter.

"Oh, you are delicious!" she exclaimed. "If I could do the ingenué like that, believe me, I'd make some hit." She came over, and, laying a hand on each of the boy's shoulders, kissed him lightly on the cheek.

"That's for a droll boy!" she said. "That's the best line I've heard pulled lately."

Farish was smiling in quiet amusement. He tapped the mountaineer on the shoulder.

"I've heard George Lescott speak of you," he said, genially. "I've rather a fancy for being among the discoverers of men of talent. We must see more of each other."

Several days later, Samson was alone in Lescott's studio. It was nearing twilight, and he had laid aside a volume of De Maupassant, whose simple power had beguiled him. The door opened, and he saw the figure of a woman, on the threshold. The boy rose somewhat shyly from his seat, and stood looking at her. She was as richly dressed as Miss Starr had been, but there was the same difference as between the colors of the sunset sky and the exaggerated daubs of Collasso's landscape. She stood at the door a moment, and then came forward, with her hand outstretched.

"This is Mr. South, isn't it?" she asked, with a frank friendliness in her voice.

"Yes, ma'am, that's my name."

"I'm Adrienne Lescott," said the girl. "I thought I'd find my brother here. I stopped by to drive him up-town."

Samson had hesitatingly taken the gloved hand, and its grasp was firm and strong despite its ridiculous smallness.

"I reckon he'll be back presently." The boy was in doubt as to the proper procedure. This was Lescott's studio, and he was not certain whether or not it lay in his province to invite Lescott's sister to take possession of it. Possibly, he ought to withdraw. His ideas of social usages were very vague.

"Then, I think I'll wait," announced the girl. She threw off her fur coat, and took a seat before the open grate. The chair was large, and swallowed her up.

Samson wanted to look at her, and was afraid that this would be impolite. He realized that he had seen no real ladies, except on the street, and now he had the opportunity.

"I'm glad of this chance to meet you, Mr. South," said the girl with a smile that found its way to the boy's heart.

After all, there was sincerity in "foreign" women. "George talks of you so much that I feel as if I'd known you all the while. Don't you think I might claim friendship with George's friends?"

Samson had no answer. He wished to say something equally cordial, but the old instinct against effusiveness tried his tongue.

"I owe right smart to George Lescott," he told her, gravely.

"That's not answering my question," she laughed. "Do you consent to being friends with me?"

"I guess I'm sort of like Mr. Graddy," said the boy, slowly. "I was just wondering how you do it."

He spoke with perfect seriousness, and, after a moment, the girl broke into prolonged peal of laughter.

"Oh, you are delicious!" she exclaimed. "If I could do the ingenué like that, believe me, I'd make some hit." She came over, and, laying a hand on each of the boy's shoulders, kissed him lightly on the cheek.

man buys his suit for me, and he pays $5 for it."

A rich Chicago broker was strolling along the street one day when his beautiful young wife stole up behind him, threw her arms around his neck, and kissed him heartily.

"What a man!" he said, hurriedly straightening his hat. "But, tut, tut! This sort of thing, my dear, is most undignified."

"Oh, excuse me, John. I—I didn't know it was you."

Changed the Formula.

Mr. Paul Taylor, London magistrate, has improved upon the time-honored formula addressed to prisoners who are obviously innocent—"You leave the court without a stain on your character." In a case before him recently he assured a defendant that he "would leave the court with as good a character as when he entered it."

CATARRH TRUTH

TOLD IN A SIMPLE WAY No Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity.

Heals Day and Night

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sticky smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to inhale. No steam or fumes. No massage. No powder. No electricity or vibration or anything in the house. Nothing of that kind at all.

Something new and different, something delightful and beautiful, something that will cure you. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it over night—and I will glad to tell you how I can cure you. This is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once. Magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It underlaid my health. I was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me. My faculties impaired. I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly yet surely sapping my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it. Write me promptly.

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say: "Dear Sam Katz, tell me how you cured your catarrh and how I can cure mine." I will write to you will complete information. FREE, at once. Do not delay. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Think of turning this page until you have asked for the wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

UNIVERSITY'S RIGHT TO INSPECT SCHOOLS REMAINS UNDECIDED

Board of Regents Is Divided Over Cary Resolution Which Would Abolish Inspection System.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 3.—Regent A. P. Cary's resolution to discontinue university inspection of public high schools of the state for the purpose of determining entrance requirements was continued to the January meeting by the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin in meeting here Wednesday.

This resolution was introduced by Regent Cary, June 17, and was referred to the faculty for consideration, with the understanding that a report would be made to the regents at this meeting. The faculty report held that the system had justified itself and that the system had justified itself and that the system had justified itself.

Benefits of inspection. "The report stated that: 'On the one hand it has made it probable that the students coming up to the university are of a reasonably adequate quality. On the other, it has carried to the schools, through university inspectors and publications, higher ideals of education and tested methods of instruction, has stimulated the schools, through the prestige of the accredited schools, to higher levels of effectiveness, and has given the school authorities support in their none too easy task of improving the teaching staffs and the equipment of the schools.'

Other points covered in the report are that the existing requirements for entrance, which accord with prevailing public opinion, are very elastic; and that they have been steadily modified to accord with real changes in public opinion.

The report states that the university accredits schools in which work is done in a reasonably adequate fashion. The report says: 'The school officers have good reason to recognize the disinterestedness of university inspectors. And again, 'The university is a continuing body devoted solely to the work of education, unhampered and unswayed by non-educational vicissitudes.'

In another place the report says: 'We do not deny on the contrary we frankly recognize the right of the state superintendent to inspect the schools in order to see that the expenditure of public money is properly expended. But we have a right to expect him to recognize our duty in the premises, as far as the high schools are concerned, not only on strictly technical grounds, but also on strictly educational grounds. The university of Wisconsin is not a private institution; it is the state university. It is the official of the state, entrusted with the administration of the higher education, including the training of teachers in technical and other lines. The success with which it takes up this work depends upon the character of the state university and moral duty of the state university to the state and the high schools to the extent necessary to safeguard the interests of the higher education of the state.'

The report of the faculty further points out what in its opinion would happen if the legislature should take away the power of inspection which the university now possesses, leaving the state superintendent in exclusive charge of high school inspection. These results would be: loss to the high schools of inspiration and support now derived from inspectors of intimate knowledge of their achievements, needs and limitations; loss to the high schools, which is so helpful in teaching their graduates; possibility of high school inspection on the part of high schools, as to make freshmen less able to begin university work.

Cary's Resolution. Following this report Regent Cary asked for the passage of his resolution. The resolution itself reads: 'Whereas, the custom of the university in past years to inspect the high schools of the state with a view to the establishing of a so-called accredited list now appears to be unnecessary, and, furthermore, a direct interference with the official duties imposed by law on the office of state superintendent of schools, and, furthermore, an unnecessary expense to the state and whereas the university is part of the public school system of the state,

Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the board of regents no longer approve of the inspection of public high schools of the state by the university for the purpose of determining entrance requirements and that the custom of inspection in practice be terminated and the school year now closing.

STORIES OF HEROISM TOLD BY KREISLER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Dec. 3.—Just arrived in New York from the Austrian war zone, Fritz Kreisler, the world's greatest violinist, and his American wife have interested New York with thrilling stories of adventure. Kreisler fought with the Austrians until he was wounded by a Cossack lancer in the trenches before Lemberg. His wife was a Red Cross nurse.

"The acts of heroism were innumerable," said Kreisler in describing his experiences. "I remember a case where three soldiers were sent by a very important message to the division commander, in the hope that one of them would get through. They had to cross an open space where they were exposed to heavy fire and progress was impeded by barbed wire entanglements charged with electricity. They had to cut their way through this wire with their bayonets. Two of them were shot dead. The third found himself nearly through when his arm, which had been shot badly, caught in the entanglement and he could not get out. Thereupon the soldier drew his bayonet and finished the work of the enemy's fire by cutting amputating his arm himself. He got clear and delivered his message."

Saved By His Orderly. "I have seen an artillery caught in an exposed place and the horse and rider were shot down; then the non-commissioned officers went, and, finally, the horse was shot and the officers were killed. But they were not killed. The instances of devotion of soldiers to officers under fire were numerous. I don't think I owe my life to my orderly. The orderly of my regiment was holding me up by the back of the neck on the night of September 8. The cavalry only dures attack on the night of September 8. It was some protection from the fire. It was about 11:30 when they were hit by one horse and knocked down. While I lay on the ground, I saw a Cossack reach down to finish me. He got me in the hip, but as he struck me I saw my orderly. I remember seeing him fall and the riderless horse gallop on. Then I became unconscious."

He was ordered to the rest of the company. After the fighting had moved on he came back and started to look for me, using a pocket flash lamp to examine the faces of the dead and wounded. He says that several times he was nearly captured by Cossack patrols, but escaped by dropping to the ground, where he was taken for wounded or dead. He found me about a mile, so I must have been lying there all night.

Cossack for Pillow. "He says I was lying on the dead Cossack who had wounded me, and that I must have grappled with him and then used him for a pillow. He gave me some brandy and revived me and then assisted me back to our lines and to a field hospital. I was wounded near Komarano, a village a little way from the southwest of Lemberg. After being in the field hospital I was taken to Vienna."

"I was in the hospital three weeks after reaching Vienna. Then I took a good trip to the sulphur springs near Carlsbad. After this a commission surgeon examined me and pronounced me unfit for further military duty. My trunked right shoulder has healed, but I will always retain at least a stiffness in my leg, however."

WORK ON ELIZABETH STREET COMPLETED

City Workmen Will Grade and Put Open Gutter on Street Extension

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

City employees completed working on the extension of Elizabeth street, from Chatham to Pine street, grubbing out the thick underbrush of the two lots purchased by the city for the improvement. An approach has been made and the ground left in a rough condition until the coming spring, when it will be graded and open gutters placed for drainage.

Outlet plates made of cement were placed at the intersection of the new running into Pleasant street, the making connection with the new sewer. Some agitation was raised by the property owners against the removing of the cross street gutter plates as the new drain drops were put thoroughly under the walk.

At every curbing intersection under the walk, there is an open eighteen inch tile, which extends down across the catch basin of the sewer and then into the second drain opening on the other cross walk. With these catch tiles the city officials who have had charge of the construction of the sewer, could see no possible chance for the drainage water to flood the streets.

BIG CREDIT OF ENGLAND INSURES FINANCIAL AID.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Stockholm, Dec. 3.—The Svenska Dagbladet publishes a report by Professor Gustav Cassel, a national authority, on "Financing the War."

He says in part: "These countries which are big creditors of the neutrals have naturally a special strength in war time, in that maturing liabilities are readily taken up. This is most distinctly seen in the case of England, which under normal circumstances invests between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 per month abroad, this being the normal form for the application of the surplus of England's balance against foreign countries. Should England now, as might be the case, cease to make these investments the corresponding amount would stand at her monthly disposal.

"This explains the excellent financial strength of England just now. England is the capitalist par excellence who can live on the returns of her capital, and who, thanks to her resources, can force the whole world to contribute towards her war expenditure."

My Wash Just Looks Lovely—I Used "SKITCH"

Don't Rub Your Clothes on a Wash Board Any More — "SKITCH" Saves All the Work and Makes Your Clothes Look Grand

Away with the antiquated wash-board, women! A ten-cent package of SKITCH saves the infernal rub, rub, rubbing of clothes and makes your clothes look fine. "I tell all my neighbors what fine washing SKITCH does," proudly says Mrs. Etta Miller, Cedarville, Ill. "I could not wash without it any more."

Get a 10-cent package of SKITCH of your grocer and smash your wash-board to pieces. Just use three teaspoons of SKITCH to a boiler of clothes then sit and rest while SKITCH takes the dirt off the clothes, one-two-three. A 10-cent package of SKITCH does seven washings and saves 10 cents' worth of soap on every one. If your grocer doesn't have SKITCH, send me his name and I'll send you a sample free. ## WILL ASK MANDAMUS TO SECURE RETURNS

Musting's Attorneys Will Take Tangle
Over Return to the State
Supreme Court.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Mandamus, Wis., Dec. 3.—Following the announcement of the state canvassing board that it would not canvass the returns for United States senators and leave a certificate until the counties of Milwaukee, Brown and Lake have returned, the attorneys for Paul O. Musting announced that they would apply to the state supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel the board to canvass the returns for the original purpose. The action will be taken so as to insure a canvass of the returns which gives the state board of canvassers ten days to make the canvass after Dec. 1.

that their candidate's rights will not be jeopardized. When the canvassing board met yesterday afternoon attorneys John A. Aylward, M. B. O'Brien and William H. Timlin, Jr., appearing for Mr. Musting asked the canvassing board to determine whether a certificate would be issued before the returns in the canvassing counties were received. Attorney A. C. Timbrell of Milwaukee argued that the board could not complete its canvass until all returns were received. He offered by both Gov. McGovern and Senator Hustling waving all legal rights in the matter until the returns were received. This was refused by Musting's attorneys, because they claimed that it precluded them obtaining a legal construction of the statute in question. Musting's attorneys also argued that it was his theory that under the law the counties of Dane, Milwaukee and Douglas should report what the original count of the ballots for United States senators showed and then send the corrected returns in later.

KING ALBERT HONORS BICYCLE SOLDIERS WHO DYNAMITED A BRIDGE

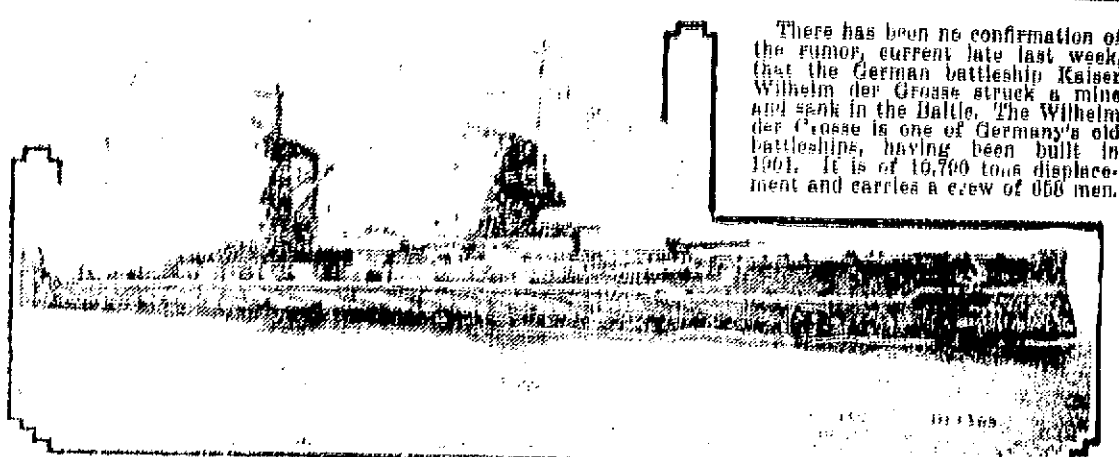

Purnes, Dec. 3.—By order of King Albert the cross of the order of Leopold was conferred on every member of the little band of cyclists who crossed the German lines and blew up a bridge near Mons, which cut the German communications for three days and allowed the Allies to assemble the force necessary to check the advance of the Germans toward Calais.

piece of hazardous work, is composed of 300 members, sworn to give their lives to the country. Only ten were taken from each regiment out of the many who volunteered. The corps is used in operations which often mean the destruction of the bridge cut off the Germans' supplies and is considered by the King to be directly responsible for the failure of the Germans to break through the line of the Allies in the critical days of the first week of November.

The officers who received both the cross of honor and the rank of chevalier of the order of Leopold were Captain Delfosse, Captain Courbois, Lieutenants de Rode, Gervois, Flebus, Pardon and Rolers, while the cross was given to twenty-four non-commissioned officers and enlisted men.
